TeamBonding Launches Art Heist Corporate Team Building Event Based on Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum Unsolved Mystery

TeamBonding launches an all-new interactive corporate team building event, Art Heist, where teams work together to solve Boston's largest unsolved mystery.

March 18, 2022 — TeamBonding is launching an all-new interactive corporate team building event, Art Heist, in honor of the upcoming 32nd anniversary of Boston's infamous unsolved mystery. The release of the new event comes just days after new tantalizing details surfaced for the Gardener Museum art heist. Defined as the largest art heist in history and carrying one of the world's largest reward offers, the three-decade-old case has remained cold all this time, but participants are more ready than ever to help finally solve the crime with fresh eyes.

Corporate teams will put their crime investigation skills to the test as they work to uncover a real-life master robbery that included thirteen works of art, valued at half a billion dollars. In this immersive theatrical experience, teams will meet the characters involved, hear their stories, reveal clues, and ask questions to help zero in on the criminal masterminds behind it all.

Although there is no known answer to this mystery, teams will come up with their best theory of who did it and what really happened. Rewards await the group that figures out what the experts have concluded. No two performances will ever be the same as the actors improvise with every interaction. This immersive true-crime experience is available for teams to solve virtually.

“We love the Gardener Museum, it's a Boston jewel and the story of this unsolved mystery makes for an exciting virtual team building adventure. The Art Heist Experience had success in 2020 and 2021 in Austin, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, Fayetteville, West Palm Beach, Jacksonville, and now will be available globally through TeamBonding's virtual team building event.”

- David Goldstein, C.O.O. of TeamBonding

To launch this team building event, TeamBonding is giving away autographed copies of “Master Thieves”, by Stephen Kurkjian, one of the most acclaimed investigative reporters in the country and principal reporter on the Gardener Museum case for The Boston Globe, who was featured in Netflix's explosive documentary about the $500 million dollar theft. Participants may enter for a chance to win one of five copies of the book through TeamBonding's Facebook and LinkedIn channels or at teambonding.com/bookgiveaway.
